NEGOTIATOR TELLS CIRCUMSTANCES OF PAYMENT OF RANSOM

Paper Says Kidnapers
Demand $70,000 By April 8

NEW YORK, April 11.—Dr. John F. Condon, university lecturer revealed as the mysterious "Jafsie" into whose coded notices in New York newspapers have been read the story of the hunt and payment of ransom for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, was discreetly silent today regarding his connection with the search.

The 70-year-old Fordham University instructor, did however clear up several vague reports circulated in connection with his notes, and indicated in an interview that he believed his notes led to contact with the purported kidnapers and payment of $50,000 to them.

"Anything I say now," he asserted, "may bring harm to the baby or hinder the negotiations for the return of the child."

Dr. Condon also denied that his name had been brought into the case because he had assisted in teaching various branches of sports to prisoners at Sing Sing penitentiary.

"This is a complete fabrication," he said. "I can give you none of the details regarding what we have done without jeopardizing the negotiations further."

Dr. Condon denied he had entered the case at the request of Col. Lindbergh.

Condon, under the signature "Jafsie," inserted thirteen advertisements since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped March 1. The first notice was March 9. Then on March 23, the following notice appeared:

"Thanks. That little package you sent was immediately delivered and accepted as the real article. See my position. Over fifty years in business and can I pay without seeing goods? Common sense makes me trust you. Please understand my position."

This notice was repeated for three days, then on March 27, this one appeared:

"Money is ready. Furnish simple code for us to use in paper."

This was printed for four successive days, followed by this terse one:

"I accept. Money is ready."

This ran on April 3, 4 and 5, during the period in which Colonel Lindbergh made several airplane trips.

It was followed on the 6th—last Wednesday—by this message:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please better directions."

This appeared for several days and was repeated today.

On April 6 the United States treasurer at Washington released his list of serial numbers paid by Lindbergh to the purported kidnapers.

Condon had offered $1,000 reward for the return of the baby in the course of an interview March 8 with the Bronx Home News, a community newspaper.

A few days later, according to one version printed by the New York Daily News, he received a letter which read:

"Dear Condon. We don't want your one thousand. We know we can trust you."

A letter to Colonel Lindbergh was enclosed the paper said. Condon read it to Lindbergh who was intrigued by German and Scandinavian phrases, and the odd signature which he identified as similar to that in the original letter left in his baby's crib by the kidnapers.

Preliminary negotiations led to a mysterious message dated April 1, a taxi driver entered the cab, then changed cabs as directed. Drove to a Yonkers cemetery. Walked along the wall until a voice ordered him to cross the street to a bench, which he did, the paper said.

A moment later a man vaulted over the fence and sat beside him. The stranger demanded $70,000, according to that version, saying, "We want an eight hour start and we can wait just as long as Lindbergh can."

Later there was a phone message which demanded more if the money were not forthcoming by April 5. That resulted in the ransom payment—and failure to find the child.

That episode came during the flying trip Lindbergh took to Martha's Vineyard and points along the new England coast line, the paper said.

PROBE SHORT SALES

Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, has been subpoenaed to appear in Washington before the senate banking committee which is planning a sweeping investigation of short sales. Collapse of security prices and reports of foreign campaigns against the American dollar prompted an emergency meeting of the senate committee.

VON HINDENBURG IS ELECTED FOR SEVEN YEARS PRESIDENCY

Returned Easy Victor
Over Hitler And Communist

BERLIN, April 11.—President Paul von Hindenburg will serve another seven year term as a result of the venerable field marshal's sensational victory at the polls over his Fascist opponent, Adolf Hitler, by approximately 6,000,000 votes.

The election Sunday resulted in a great personal triumph for the hero of the German people in war and their idol in peace, although Hitler increased his popular vote over that received in the March elections. The president received an absolute majority. Only a plurality was required.

The final returns as announced by the federal election board were:
Hindenburg ..... 19,359,642
Thaelmann ..... 13,417,388
Thaelmann was the Communist candidate. His vote fell off heavily from the March election.

There was the usual election tension among rival groups and five persons were killed and many injured in street fights and brawls.

Several hundred persons were arrested for disorderly conduct. Two Fascist, one Communist, and one Socialist were killed "in action."

One woman killed her husband en route to the polls after a quarrel on how the family was to vote.

Hitler received 2,076,000 more votes than in the March election, while the Communists, most bitter foe of fascism, lost heavily. The president's popular vote was increased only 705,000, but he won 29 of 35 electoral districts.

Hindenburg's majority in Sunday's vote was 2,235,794; his lead over Hitler 5,942,172; his approximate percentage of the total vote 53.

Hitler's approximate percentage of the total vote Sunday was 33.6 compared with 30.1 in March. He made remarkable gains in Berlin and throughout Prussia.

Hitler, cheered by the increase in his vote at the apparent expense of the Communists, issued a manifesto to his followers telling them to prepare for the next battle, that of the Prussian diet elections.

"I knew that your loyalty to me was unshakable, but I feel obliged to thank you for your spirit of sacrifice," the statement said.

"Despite persecution and oppression you have achieved a new and great victory for our movement and proved yourselves worthy of further carrying the banner of national freedom. Tomorrow the new battle begins. I know the day will come when our flags will fly toward a last decisive victory."

SHOT THREE TIMES IN POLICE BATTLE
YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 11.—Tony Pavanda, 45, of Struthers, was in St. Elizabeth Hospital today, shot three times in the legs following a gun fight with Campbell police.

Three detectives said they stopped Pavanda to ask him what he was doing. His answer was to start firing, they said.

FAVOR BONUS
YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 11.—The Mahoning Veterans' Association, comprising 900 ex-servicemen, was on record today in favor of the soldier bonus. A resolution supporting the bonus was adopted at a meeting attended by 500 members of the group, including both World War and Spanish-American War veterans.

PRESIDENT IN FORM

Ready To Toss Out First Ball And Launch
American League Campaign

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Though he plays medicine ball every day, President Hoover has only one chance a year to show what he can do with a baseball—and today's the day.

Weather permitting, the President will go out to Griffith stadium this afternoon, throw out a new baseball, and settle down to watch the Washington Senators and the Boston Red Sox in the first major league game of 1932. Other teams begin their schedules tomorrow.

The day began chill and damp, following two days of continuous rain. But the diamond has been recovered over and Owner Griffith declared there would be a postponement only if it was raining at game time. In any case, it seemed that heavy overcasts rather than spring finery would be in order.

President Hoover will take several of his cabinet secretaries to the game with him. Mr. Hoover attends a few games here each season and also has gone to Philadelphia for world's series contests the past two years.

Promptly at three, Manager Walter Johnson of the Senators will hand a bright new ball to Mr. Hoover. The President of the United States will toss it to or near Umpire Bill Dineen. The umpire will put it in his pocket as a souvenir, heave another to Pitcher Alvin Crowder, and the American League race will be on.

STUDENTS BEATEN AND DRIVEN OUT OF KENTUCKY MINE COUNTY

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 11.—Five faculty members and students from Commonwealth College, Mena, Ark., claimed here today they had been beaten and forced out of Harlan County, Ky., by men opposed to their investigation of coal mining conditions.

Lucien Koch, president, Harold Coy, current history teacher, and Sam Sandberg, Ed Grillo and Ike Greenberg charged they were beaten with birch switches and released across the Virginia state line. Coy's back was marked by a long welt.

"Entering Pineville, Ky., early yesterday Police Chief Osborne forced us to the side of the road and escorted us into town," one of the students said.

"We conferred with Osborn and Mayor Brooks. The Pineville officials insisted that we make peace bonds. President Koch objected. Finally he was forced from the wheel of our car. It was taken over by a citizen of Bell County. We headed for Harlan, after food and clothing we had brought for distribution to strikers was tossed along the road."

About a mile out of Pineville, a member of the student group said, a long line of automobiles from Harlan, bearing white flags, met the Bell County delegation. Newspapermen following the cars were ordered to halt for an hour.

Koch said the party then was taken to Black Mountain on the Kentucky-Virginia state line where he claimed the school was chained by the wrists, his coat was removed, and he was beaten by switches cut from the mountain brush. Coy and Sanderson also were beaten, it was claimed.

Koch said while he knew none of his assailants by name, he could identify them if he saw them again.

After the alleged beating, the group of five men drove over the state line into Virginia and proceeded here.

UNIONDALE, Ky., April 11.—Students of a Mena, Arkansas, labor college who were escorted from Bell County Sunday by officers and vigilantes, today were described by authorities as "radicals" who would have stirred up trouble.

Pearl Osborne, police chief here, and Major J. M. Brooks asserted the party was offered the right to "make a speech" in the court house yard, but were told they must make a peace bond if they were to remain in the city. They did neither and were escorted forcibly to the city limits.

According to Coroner Haines and Sheriff John Raughn, the Mena students used a .22 caliber pistol that a short time previously he had removed from the cash drawer of a filling station he operated on W. Washington St., about three blocks from his residence.

Returning home, he walked through the kitchen where his wife was preparing breakfast, mounted the stairs to his bedroom and shot himself in the head.

Long had passed a sleepless night, it was said. Upon arising Sunday morning, he talked with his wife and spoke of the condition of his health, which had not been good for two years, ever since he had submitted to an operation for appendicitis. During the conversation he remarked that he never expected to regain his health. Mrs. Long said the family had planned to go to the death there of a cousin, Frank Long.

After talking with his wife, Long went to his filling station, where he directed his assistant, Floyd Badgley, to look after the business as he expected to be gone the remainder of the day. He then went to the cash drawer and Badgley discovered afterward that he had taken the revolver they always kept there.

LONG, who was born March 8, 1875 in New Jasper, at one time operated the first Ford automobile agency in Jamestown, and later an implement and hardware business there for a number of years until 1927.

He was also a partner in a hardware and implement business in Xenia for about three years in the early 1920's, under the firm name of Long and Spahr. His partner was O. M. Spahr and their place of business was where the Huston-Bickett Co. store is now located on E. Main St. At that time he lived in this city but most of his life was spent at Jamestown.

Surviving besides his widow, formerly Miss Louella L. Loyd, Xenia, is his daughter, Mrs. Kathryn Frye, Sharon, Pa., who with her husband, arrived last Friday for a week-end visit with her parents; and a brother and sister Lewis Long, Sherman, Texas, now visiting at New Jasper, and Miss Hattie Long, New Jasper, married in 1909. Mr. and Mrs. Long would have celebrated their thirty-second anniversary within a week.

Private funeral services will be held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will be made in Jamestown Cemetery. Friends may call at the home any time Tuesday during the day or evening and Wednesday morning.

TAILOR SUCUMBS

MILLS RE-OPEN
MARTINS FERRY, O., April 11.—Six mills of the Martins Ferry plant of the Wheeling Steel Corporation today were to resume operations, re-employing scores of men. The plant has been idle for several weeks.

PATMAN OPENS FIGHT FOR BONUS PAYMENT BEFORE COMMITTEE

GETS HEART BALM

"It is little enough for all I have suffered," commented Miss Grace Priehs, 30, of Pittsburgh, as a jury in federal court in Cleveland awarded her $10,000 in her $100,000 suit against Arthur Geiger, 43-year-old bachelor of Alliance, O., charging seduction and breach of promise. Defense testimony at the trial showed that Geiger instead of being wealthy is $22,000 in debt.

ALIENISTS CALL ON FOUR PERSONS HELD IN HONOLULU TRIAL

Believe Darrow To Seek Disagreement Of Mixed Jury

HONOLULU, T. H., April 11.—A jury of mixed whites and browns prepared to hear first evidence today in the trial of four Americans charged with the honor slaying of Joe Kalamahaw, native youth.

Clarence Darrow and his battery of assistants were ready for a strong fight to win acquittal. The fact seven Caucasians sit on the jury with five Orientals and polyneesian complicated the defense.

Though the shrewd and far sighted Darrow was silent there is no doubt he is well aware of Hawaii's unusual law which prescribes that when two trials of the same case result in disagreement, the defendants must be freed. Hence, a hung jury would at least be half a victory for the defense in this case, with little prospect that Prosecutor John Kelley would order them tried again.

It is costing the territory about $300 a day to prosecute the case. The defense, it is estimated, will cost $400,000, most of it paid out of a fund raised by very mean here.

Preparing for a defense against Kelley's case of circumstantial evidence, two Los Angeles alienists were reported to have interviewed the four Americans yesterday.

It was known that visitors were received at Pearl Harbor navy base where Mrs. Granville Roland Fortescue, New York and Washington socialite; her son-in-law, Lt. (JG) Thomas H. Maseie, and Sailorman E. J. Lord and A. O. Jones, are held as "prisoners at large" during their trial.

The psychiatrists, it was learned by the United Press, will be used in a plea based on the unwritten law, together with the claim that Kalamahaw actually was killed during an emotional collapse by one of the defendants. Dapper, tense Lt. Maseie will be the star defense witness—possibly the only one—if this strategy is carried out.

CHANGE OF PASTOR BRINGS RESENTMENT

BEREA, O., April 11.—Bishop Joseph Schrems of Cleveland today was to hear the protests of St. Adelbert Church parishioners against the removal of the Rev. Fr. St. R. Rogers and appointment of Rev. Fr. Szpanowski.

When the Rev. Fr. Szpanowski arrived to conduct his first services Sunday, the congregation refused to let him enter. Women members guarded the doors, backed by a crowd of 1,000.

The disturbance was reported to Mayor John J. Basel, who put in emergency calls for the police and fire departments. Police quieted the crowd and the new priest retired to a chapel at the rear of the church.

HOOVER SPEAKS

SENATE COMMITTEE REQUESTS NAMES OF BEARS ON EXCHANGE

Whitney Ordered To Testify
In Probe Of Short Selling

WASHINGTON, April 11.—President Richard Whitney of the New York Stock Exchange was ordered to reveal today the names of stock market "bears."

He was subpoenaed to lay before the senate banking committee in public session a list of traders who have sold stocks short, the amount of their sales, and the names of their brokers. He was instructed also to present a list of all corporations in whose stocks there is short interest of 10,000 or more shares. Never before has such stock market information been made public.

President Hoover is "back of the inquiry to the limit," Senator Wolcott, Rep., Conn., announced.

The administration holds that short sales in effect has constituted a bear drive against recovery from depression. It believes federal efforts to assist business and industry have been hindered and in some instances nullified by bear operations in the market.

The subpoena for Whitney was issued by an emergency meeting of the banking committee at which senators were informed bear operators had organized for a $1,000,000 (B) raid against stock and bond values in the half day of trading last Saturday. Following an announcement of the committee's decision to obtain names of the bears, he market rose slightly on Saturday.

The committee also was aroused by renewed foreign pressure against the United States gold standard. It wants to know how much of the short selling is being done for foreign interests.

Senator Glass, Dem., Va., has challenged the legality of the subpoena which Whitney accepted by telegraph in New York.

The United Press was informed on good authority, however, that the purpose of the committee is only to hear Whitney for the time being. After his appearance today it is the expectation of several committee members that the inquiry will pause pending an analysis of his voluminous data.

Senate opinion generally welcomed the inquiry, although there was a considerable group believing bulls as well as bears should be exposed. Senator Norris, Rep., Neb., was one of these.

"The committee should seek information about longs as well as shorts," he said today. "It should investigate men who established spurious values."

TRIAL OF SLAYER TO START TUESDAY

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 11.—Paul Christian, 29, of Huntington W. Va., purportedly a confessed robber and slayer, will go on trial Tuesday in common pleas court here on the charge of killing John Barnes, city detective. Christian has been defended by Attorney S. A. Skelton.

Barnes was shot Feb. 26 as he tried to arrest Christian, when the latter was robbing a woman on the street.

DECIDE ON NAME

PRISONER QUIZZED SEEKING NEW CLUE; REWARD PUBLISHED

Reveal Professor As Mediator; Ransom
Sum Is Paid

HOPEWELL, N. J., April 11.—Hope for a clue to the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby or to the purported kidnapers who double crossed its aviator father in collecting $50,000 ransom rested today with "a noted character with no police record," held as a suspect, and a $50,000 reward offered.

Police and private efforts to find the baby stolen March 1 from the Col. Charles A. Lindbergh estate here was complicated by speculation on possible effect of the reward offer.

The reward, announced by three associated newspapers despite recall of similar but smaller offers announced early in the hunt for the kidnapers, was the latest development over the week end in which these developments in the story were made known.

Colonel Lindbergh revealed that he had paid $50,000 to persons "properly identified" as the kidnapers, but did not find the baby at the spot specified.

John F. Condon, an instructor at Fordham University, revealed he was the mysterious "Jafsie" who has inserted coded messages New York newspapers and believed to be the basis of negotiations with the supposed kidnapers. Content of messages coincide with developments in the hunt for the kidnapers.

The treasury department notified all American banks to look for the serial numbers of the $20, $10 and $5 bills delivered by Col. Lindbergh to the men he believed to be holding his baby. Any bank receiving any of the currency was requested to notify the treasury at once.

The $50,000 reward offer was made by the New York Daily News, The Chicago Tribune, and The Detroit Mirror. It read:

"All law enforcement authorities having failed thus far to secure the return of the Lindbergh baby to its parents, and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh having been swindled out of $50,000, The News in conjunction with The Chicago Tribune and The Detroit Mirror offers $50,000 reward for exclusive information which will enable The News or The Chicago Tribune or Detroit Mirror to restore the baby to its parents."

A question touching on foreign approval of such a reward offer brought the reply from Colonel H. Norman Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey state police early today:

"This has been taken up with Colonel Lindbergh who feels that the offer must be carefully considered particularly as to the effect it will have on the safety of the baby. My action will depend on Lindbergh's decision."

Rewards offered a few days after the kidnapping were recalled at Colonel Lindbergh's request. Among them was a reward voted by the state legislature of New Jersey. It was feared such offers would interfere with attempts of the Lindberghs to negotiate directly and promptly with the kidnapers, who might fear outside interference and be led to harm the baby.

In a statement last night the flier said his identification of the men to whom he paid the money accomplished only through "means" further offered by the kidnapers in the ransom note which they left in the baby's crib the night of March 1. Col. Lindbergh's statement follows:

"At the time the baby was kidnapped a ransom note demanding $50,000 was left in the nursery. For obvious reasons it was necessary to withhold all information regarding this ransom note. A means was offered in the ransom note of positive identification of the kidnapers thereafter.

Subsequent notes received were identified by this means and at the time that the ransom was paid over, the kidnapers used this same means to positively identify themselves as the ones who had carried off the baby.

"This is the only means by which Col. Lindbergh can know for a fact that he is dealing with the kidnapers. It has been withheld and will be withheld by Col. Lindbergh for future identification."

"It must be remembered that the baby has not been returned and it has been and still is the policy of the police authorities that the primary motive is to accomplish the return of the baby and all efforts are and will be bent in this direction."

This statement set at rest various conflicting rumors as to how

TRAIN WRECKS AUTO BUT FAILS TO HURT ITS RUNNING POWER

Entire one side of a touring car driven by a traveling salesman for the Princess Garment Co., Cincinnati, was caved in when the auto was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a grade crossing in Spring Valley at 11 a. m. Monday.

But a collision with a locomotive was not sufficient to put the car out of commission and the salesman, named Meyers, was able to drive the machine back to Cincinnati.

Meyers was on his way to Columbus when his car stalled on the tracks.

Noticing a train approaching, the driver got out and attempted to push the car over the crossing, without success.

The engineer slowed down the speed of the train, but could not bring it to a complete stop in time and the auto was pushed gently ahead of the locomotive for a short distance down the rails.

Although one side of the car was damaged, Meyers discovered the motor still functioned and headed back in the auto toward Cincinnati.

More than 500 women have been invited to attend.

Fallen Millionaire III

Little hope is held for the recovery of Josiah V. Thompson, 78-year-old former coal baron and banker, confined in a hospital at Uniontown, Pa., as the result of an apoplectic stroke. Although his wealth totalled $70,000,000 two decades ago, Thompson was declared bankrupt in 1915. Later he spent eight days in jail for failure to repay sums as ordered by a court. He has been a recluse in recent years, occupying only one wing of the now shabby mansion in Uniontown where he once entertained so lavishly.

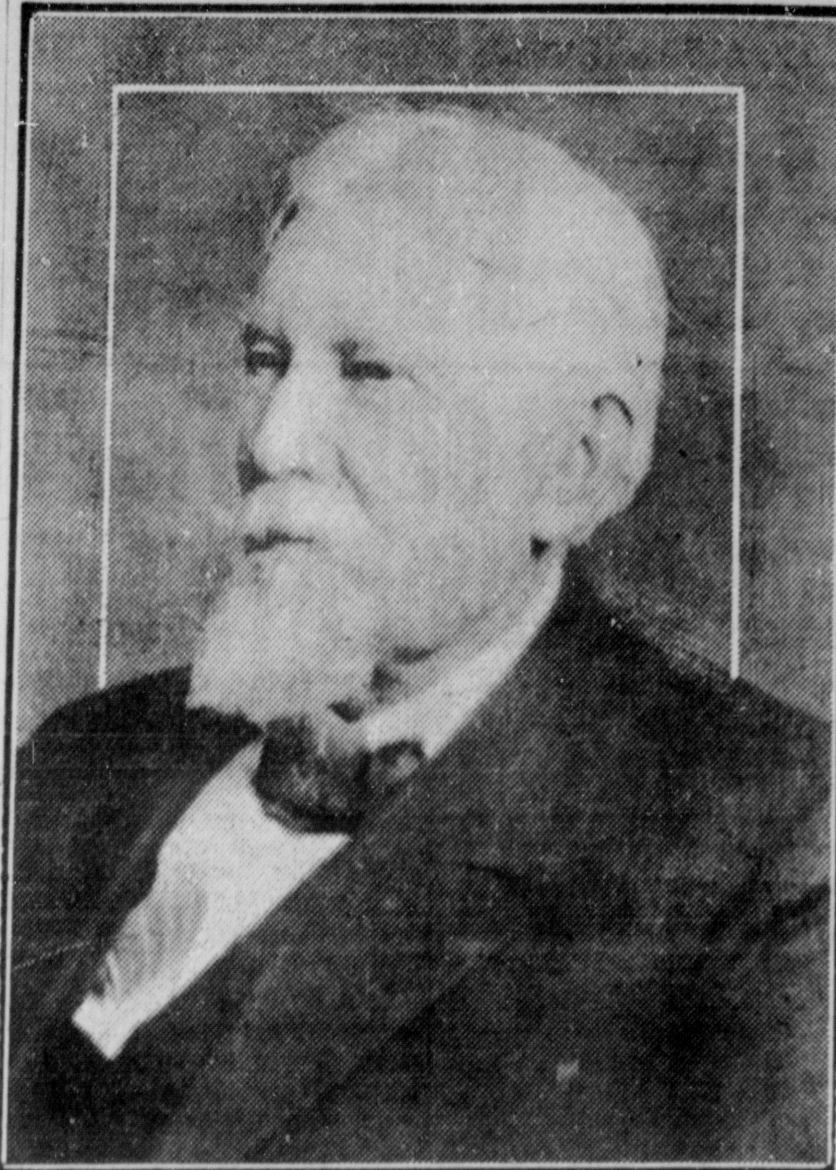

One Hundred Years Ago

ONE hundred years ago James Parker Chew, founder of THE GAZETTE as a daily paper, was born.

It was at the dawning of spring—in York County, Pennsylvania—April 10, 1832.

Andrew Jackson was then President and the country was still in the formative stage before the lure of the West had completed the conquest of the white man.

One hundred years race down the corridors of time, leaving their indelible imprint on the new civilization of the West. And so we pause at the end of one hundred years to pay tribute to the memory of him who, armed only with indomitable courage, came west to find his place in the journalism of the new country, where he founded daily newspaper which still lives as a monument to him.

1832—JAMES PARKER CHEW—1932

THE GAZETTE feels a little humble today, as it bows its head in tribute to the man whose shadow was cast so long across its path into the future.

Making a newspaper fifty years ago was not the routine process that it has come to be today. While the newspaper of its day was modest compared with the efforts of the present, yet the simple problems were much more vital then, and in the skirmish for success, many fell by the wayside.

Now their memories are but whitened sepulchres along the path of Xenia's history, their names living only in the pages of books. Out of this struggle for existence with primitive methods and primitive passions, that often wrecked their espousers in the days of personal journalism, The Gazette now sees in retrospect, James Parker Chew, holding the torch of the new journalism, cutting a path for others to follow, carving for himself a niche in Ohio's journalistic hall of fame. Along the path he hewed so ably, many a small town daily newspaper has come since then and many a small town newspaper editor has found inspiration in his deeds. So it is altogether fitting and proper that The Gazette should inscribe this tribute today.

JAMES PARKER CHEW received a common school education in Carlisle, Pa., and learned the printing trade there on the Carlisle Herald in the manner common to his day.

It was a custom of the times to apprentice youngsters to a trade, their recompense being largely the knowledge of the profession they acquired. So it was that this Pennsylvania boy came to be a printer.

And so it was that, armed with this trade and an abounding faith in himself as his only assets, he set out from his home county in 1851 to seek a career in the still primitive "West."

In 1852, six months before he attained his majority, he had launched upon his career by purchasing the Lawrenceburg, Ind., Press, a weekly paper. There for twenty-five years as editor and publisher, he wielded his influence, and was, for seven years, internal revenue collector for the district.

Then, with his young and formative years behind him, he severed the pleasant ties that bound him to his adopted community, and moved his family to Xenia, where he had bought the Xenia Gazette, a weekly newspaper. It is said that his move was actuated by a desire to publish a Republican organ in a Republican community, an ideal which he cherished and fostered through his long association with his new paper.

The Gazette had sprung up after the Civil War as a party organ, being founded by J. F. Patton, Thomas L. Tiffany and Warren Anderson. The initial issue had been of 800 copies, but such was its welcome that within a month the subscription list had increased to 1,200.

Anderson sold his interest in 1870 to Col. R. P. Findley and Patton and Findley acquired the interests of Tiffany upon his death the same year. Five years later Colonel Findley bought out his partner and two years later he sold the paper to James Parker Chew. Thus began the long line of Chew succession.

THE institution of the Gazette as a daily paper was one of the most colorful episodes in the early newspaper history of this section of Ohio.

Within a few years after the new owner started publication of his newly-acquired weekly, he heard reports that the Xenia Nonpareil, another weekly, was contemplating entering the daily field. The problem of meeting this move, intensified by the lack of facilities of that day, was one to cause the Gazette publisher considerable worry. But he met the issue with dramatic swiftness.

While the change in the contemporary was planned, the Gazette, in the parlance of the day, "took the bull by the horns." Overnight the Chew weekly became the Chew daily and the publication of a daily newspaper in a small town, with primitive equipment, became a pioneering gesture in Ohio journalism. Yet it has never missed a publication day since the first daily issue.

THE achievement of converting a weekly paper into a daily overnight, gains stature in retrospect. The processes of newspaper publishing in those days, were vastly different from the publication methods of today.

All editorial copy and news matter was prepared laboriously by pencil, without the helping agency of the typewriter and the mechanical methods of the era were just as difficult. All type matter was set by hand from sorted type.

The assembled type matter was then locked tightly in forms and the pages locked on a handfed press. It was necessary for the pressman to feed the sheets into the press by hand for printing on one side, then change the printing forms and feed the partly printed sheets in again to be printed on the reverse side.

In such a fashion was The Xenia Daily Gazette offered to a waiting community, facing difficulties of production, but staunch to its ideal of recounting daily the happenings in the community which it served.

James Parker Chew possessed the vision of the pioneer, but it is doubtful if even he conceived what the future held forth in the matter of mechanical advances to aid the production of a newspaper.

Yet he lived to see his modest sheet of six columns grow to seven and eight columns; saw it increase in size from but four pages to six, and then eight and ten or twelve pages; saw it progress from type-setting by hand to type set by machinery and eventually to the modern type-casting machines of today.

He saw news assembled by the swift processes of telegraph and telephone, written on typewriters that helped to prevent the typographical error that is the burden of the publisher. He saw pictures rushed over the wire into print by the half-tone engraving process. He saw The Gazette grow from its small tedious printing press to one with papers printed on both sides by the flat-bed press method and later saw them tossed out of a giant press at the rate of 400 complete copies per minute, printed and folded ready for distribution. Yet such was his mental alertness that he kept abreast of these steps in newspaper progress.

JAMES PARKER CHEW was the old-school editor. The newspaper was not the highly departmentalized organization of today and the early editor kept his finger on every feature of its production.

He wrote the editorials himself and in the early days also supervised the preparation of news matter for each day's issue. Mentally alert to the last, he was a keen student of current affairs, particularly in the world of politics, and wrote clearly and emphatically on all subjects until his fatal illness stayed his facile pen.

He directed the destinies of his newspaper from the standpoint of its business progression and was quick to urge that advertising revenue is necessary to insure an independent press because an independent press must be economically free. He was thoroughly steeped in typography and shoddy printing earned his scorn. The mechanical processes of printing his paper held no mysteries for him, nor, for that matter, most of the editors of his day.

During those trying periods when the new daily was in the formative stage, he directed its policies in such a way as to reflect credit upon the paper.

He considered the esteem of his fellowmen as greater than sordid gain, and was critical of any income that appeared tainted in the light of his own ideals.

Through the years he made a monument of these ideals, surrounding them with the beacon of his own personality so that, in death, his hand still is at the helm—his policies still guide the paper he left as his monument.

To his employees he was kind and considerate, exacting only discipline and good workmanship and no violation of the creed he had set as his guiding star. To his contemporaries he was a genial soul, with kindly, twinkling eyes and a white beard that added benignity to his countenance.

He subscribed to the popular theory that the soft answer turns away wrath, but his mental processes were such that he could administer rebuke without tempting ire.

His philosophy appeared to be to print a good small town daily newspaper, endow it with all the talents at his command, and turn out his finished product on so lofty a standard that it could enter any home without fear of besmirching, but instead, occupy a place of high esteem. His friends found it a privilege to know him, which is, perhaps, the finest tribute.

TIME, inexorable, moves on. The sturdy character who had bulidged the Gazette from its modest beginning as a weekly to a daily of prestige and power, wavered and crashed.

The pen with which he had recounted the daily joys and sorrows, the triumphs and failures, the successes and disappointments, the tragedies and comedies of his community, slipped from the grasp that had held it firm for nearly half a century.

In his life time he had written a comprehensive history of the county. No baby was so humble but that the announcement of his birth did not deserve space in his paper. No mighty oak fell but what the reverberations were duly caught and imprisoned in type. No one, inspired by worthy motive, was ever denied the use of his columns to further good in the community.

As a publisher he ranked high in the councils of his fellow-publishers. He was one of the organizers of the Associated Ohio Dailies, an organization of the craft, and for twenty-five years served as its treasurer. From the humble beginnings in York County, Pennsylvania had come a leader in small town journalism.

To the last he held aloft the torch and, when death caused him to falter, younger hands took it from him, that his ideals might live.

And now, thinking back over 100 years, these younger hands, now seasoned, still find in his life and works the inspiration and courage to meet modern problems.

And what greater tribute, as we contemplate this centennial anniversary, than that his Gazette should rear a column of newspaper type to his memory?

COUPLE ACCUSED AS ACCIDENT SEQUEL; PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Edward D. Lagemann, 422 Linwood St., Dayton, charged with operating an auto while intoxicated, and his wife, Rosa, accused of drunkenness, will have a joint hearing in Municipal Court at 10 a. m. Tuesday.

They pleaded not guilty to the charges when arraigned before Judge E. Dawson Smith Monday morning.

The arrests were made by Chief Deputy Sheriff Walton Spahr and L. A. Davis, county road patrolman, following their investigation of an auto accident in which the couple was involved at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

A sedan, being driven by Lagemann toward Dayton, collided with a bridge spanning the Little Miami River at Trebein, on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, and broke through the railing.

There were conflicting reports as to whether the auto upset, the officers said. Lagemann and his wife escaped injury, but the front of their car was badly damaged.

ESCAPE INJURY AS AUTO SIDESWIPED

Dr. O. P. Elias, Cedarville dentist, his wife and her father, Victor Sullivan, Charleston, W. Va., who has been visiting at the Elias home, escaped injury when their auto was side-swiped by another car driven by an unidentified Negro, Sunday night on the Cincinnati Pike, at Mt. Holly. The Cedarville residents were returning home from Cincinnati. Their machine left the highway and hit a pole, but did not upset.

Hear Xenia Composer's Choir Music

An audience which filled the auditorium and lecture rooms of the First U. P. Church, E. Market St., Sunday evening greeted the presentation of a program of sacred music composed by Mrs. William J. Cherry, near Xenia. Numbers for junior, high school and senior choirs together with selections for quartets were presented.

In addition to the anthems other compositions by Mrs. Cherry were used by Miss Marjorie Street, organist, and Miss Lois Street, cellist.

In commenting on the program Monday, the Rev. James P. Lytle, pastor of the church said, "Such a program of original compositions I believe to be not only unusual but unique. The church and community are indeed proud to have so talented and consecrated an artist. The music is of that high order of excellence which has ever characterized the work of Mrs. Cherry as a musician and singer. The selections were written with certain portions of Holy Scripture in mind, particularly the Psalms. The use of these for the words adds no little to their attractiveness and appeal."

A Happy Washday Adventure

— by C.A. Voight

"Does wonderful lot of cleaning," says Mrs. Tessie Gaisrig of Chicago

"I WAS really astonished to learn how much I could do with one large box of Rinso. First of all I did two weeks' wash and got the clothes clean and white in less time. My wash was big, too, as you can see:

6 bureau scarfs	22 dish towels	6 nightgowns
12 doilies	24 handkerchiefs	6 men's underwear
10 face cloths	5 pairs men's pajamas	15 pairs socks
6 table cloths	4 pairs overalls	7 dresses
15 towels	12 aprons

"Using the same box of Rinso I mopped my kitchen floor 3 times, and washed down the woodwork once. Much to my surprise, there was still a little Rinso left in the box!"

A little Rinso gives thick suds, even in hardest water. Try it. See how much work one box will do for you.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou has put all things under his feet.—Psalm viii, 6.

OPTIMISTIC VIEW

There is encouragement in the words of Allan M. Pope, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America as he writes of the progressive steps taken to restore prosperity. And these steps are turning the tide, he asserts.

He sees our problems as of an entirely domestic nature and at the same time advises not to worry about the value of the dollar.

In an article recently published, Mr. Pope says:

"The tide of depression is slowly turning. Six months ago the nation was overwhelmed with the problem, while today leaders are taking progressive steps to restore prosperity.

"The federal government does not intend to borrow any more new money after July 1. The government can be counted on not to bring out any long term bonds during the fiscal year and will stick to the short term market.

"Bankers should make known to clients interested in government securities that long term United States issues need not react adversely for fear of new offerings clogging the market.

"It should be clearly understood that we in the United States are not faced with the seriousness of the world problem. Our problem is predominantly domestic. We cannot overlook international affairs, but today they are not bearing down upon us with the heaviness of internal affairs. We are faced with reasonable and unreasonable fears at home.

"Forget the loose talk about the value of the dollar abroad. The dollar is all right and we are but borrowing needless trouble when we worry about it.

"We had cause for concern when banks failed at the rate they were failing, and when that concern developed into fear we were confronted with the very cause of bank failures. This was not allowed to become a vicious circle, and leadership has stepped in to prevent it. I have met a majority of those chosen to run the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. They are fearless, able and sound-thinking men, as you and everyone doubtless know. Their job is to stop banks failing, with the aid of their corporation and with the aid of the public.

"The proof of the value of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is embodied in the figures of bank failures in recent months. The bank failures in February were approximately 50 per cent of the bank failures in January. In March the bank failures averaged at a rate of only 20 per cent of those in January. These figures indicate, without question of doubt, that the tide of bank failures has been turned."

JAPAN AND CHINA—THE CHRISTIAN ATTITUDE

An editorial in a recent issue of the Federal Council Bulletin states the following regarding this subject: "What may the Christian people of the United States do to help in this tragic situation? First of all, we must restrain our natural indignation and wrath. We must not lose our tempers, hurl denunciatory epithets or demand resort to military force. To think of our policy in terms of battleships and arms would be to commit the same blundering crime that Japanese militarists have committed. We must remember, too, how much injustice western nations have done to the Orient in the past as in the discriminatory aspects of our immigration policy. And we must cultivate the spirit of fairness—of real friendliness to both these great nations of the Far East. Our righteous indignation against Japan's militaristic foray in Shanghai must not blind us to the fact that Japan has real grievances. Our sympathy for China must not close our eyes to her political chaos, the ruthless warfare of her war-lords, her lack of a responsible government to meet its international obligations. China should be assured by the nations of the West that she shall have justice and security without resort to militarism. But she must set her house in order, get rid of her civil war and develop into a responsible modern nation. Japan should be assured that she will have food for her multiplying millions, raw materials for her industries and an unmenaced market for her goods without having to seize them by military might. It is idle to tell Japan she must not resort to violence to secure these ends, if by following the methods of peace she is going to starve."

SETS GOOD EXAMPLE

These are the days when the watcher at the windowpane discovers that a feathered stranger, with an orange-red waistcoat, is parading on the lawn. The stranger obligingly poses with a perky slant of the head and, that done, hops briskly across a hummock of grass and begins to direct some invisible choristers.

Perhaps the robin does not rightfully deserve the title of first harbinger of spring, but that he has a cheerful philosophy on a gray day—with the sun obscured by a cloud—goes without argument. The cheerful robin owns no stocks or bonds, no real estate, cares not a whit for expensive Oriental rugs and variegated tapestries, boasts no automobile or pleasure yacht, belongs to no exclusive clubs.

The cheerful robin is content with just enough crumbs to keep "the wolf from the door," and never forgoes the opportunity to sing a song and to enjoy the pleasant business of surveying and approving the world around him. Many an observer on his way to his morning work might take a jolly stave or two from the song book of this chipper fellow whose "very appearance makes humans happy."

HAWAIIAN PROBLEMS

Wallace R. Farrington, former Governor of Hawaii, says "we do not settle our problems of justice in Hawaii on racial lines. We never have. If let alone, we never will." He thinks that this is hard for fellow citizens on "the mainland," to believe or understand.

In the 6,406 square miles of the Territory of Hawaii live some 368,336 persons. For its size, Hawaii is the greatest "melting pot" in the world, the home of Hawaiians, Caucasian-Hawaiians, Asiatic-Hawaiians, Portuguese, Porto Ricans, Spanish, Americans, English, Chinese, Japanese, Koreans and infiltrations of other races. Added to this are the offspring of a variety of intermarriages which further confuse the racial picture.

The present situation is proof that the pot-pourri of human elements has its unsavory aspects. Into the well-beloved "Paradise of the Pacific," where neither plant, insect nor reptile is poisonous, has entered venomous human evils to play serpent in the island Eden.

At the same time, those who live on the Islands should be better fitted to cope with their dangers than anyone else is.

The Territory of Hawaii, commercially and strategically, is of immense value to the United States. Industry, which brought about most of the racial mixture through the need for labor in the cane fields, especially, has created the problem which has but lately assumed dangerous proportions.

Citizens of continental United States ought to bear in mind Mr. Farrington's plea that the Territorial forces of government, law and order be let alone. The officials there know quite well that there is more to their problem than the job of seeing justice done in any one criminal trial. We, their fellows on the mainland, should not add to their difficulties by voicing hasty, hot-tempered opinions, or by expressing racial antagonisms.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK—The Morn over the town:

While the gazettes mourn over a drop in road business for shows which threatens the institution, "Scandals" reports the most prosperous trek of all.

George White did something of rare sense; he toured a first-string company, with an original Broadway arrangement, instead of the usual matter of a million vehicle of worn-out costumes and choruses.

Snapshot on a flying trip: Jean Harlow arriving at the stage door of a movie house in Washington, D. C. in a limousine with drawn blinds and escorted by four thrilled local sheiks.

If Claudette Colbert catches this in the Hollywood Citizen-News, she'll know that I didn't reply to her wire because I was in Jersey covering an angle which didn't pan out of you-know-what story.

One of the coast studios, I am told, recently wrestled unsuccessfully with the problem of getting extras who could run sewing machines. Only six in a hundred applicants qualified.

Stamp collectors largely financed the last trip of the Graf Zeppelin to America. If you don't believe it, ask me how. Prospectors' Fifth avenue theater, which incidentally is in Sixth avenue, is shocking the old-timers by running gaudy movies when it used to be the haven of the carriage trade.

To my mind the most believable and thrilling of all the newspaper movies (except "The Front Page" which was of course a photographed play—"Final Edition," with Pat O'Brien, who deserves a large cheer as one of the few movie heroes who acts remotely like a human being, and talks like one.

PARAGRAPHS IN THE SAND

Spent an evening reading one of the wildest and most fantastic books I've ever opened—"The Lord of the Sea," by M. P. Shiel, but a volume which offers a halcyon laded fiction tastes. It's an old tome to which I've just got around.

The chairman of the "Block Aid" campaign in my bailiwick is the corner druggist, who is politically a pale pink Communist. He sighed heavily the other night, pointing out that although detailed to collect a quarter apiece from the residents nearby, he had been unable to extract the many quarters and dollars owed him for ginger ale, cigarettes and aspirin.

Time was when music publishers turned heaven and earth to get orchestras in the flesh and on the air to hammer out tunes—to "plug" them, as the say went. Now Tin Pan Alley not only seeks no such favors, but discourages the practice. When a song is crooned or saxophoned into the ether night is inexorably shortened. Six weeks being the average life of a popular tune, anyhow, it's important to have it played only when it will do the most good.

THE REAL STUMP SPEAKING WILL COME LATER

On Anniversary Of U. S. Entry Into Conflict In Europe Senator Norris Upholds His Stand

WASHINGTON.—Fifteen years ago at this time the name of Senator George W. Norris was one of the six most unpopular in the United States.

The country was straining every nerve to get out of the war, and the active participation of our children in the World War and with five fellow senators—La Follette, the elder; Gronna, Lane, Stone and Vandaman—the Nebraska was on record in opposition to American entrance into the conflict.

Of this half dozen who cast senate votes on April 6, 1917, against the declaration of hostilities with Germany Senator Norris alone is living.

Said Senator Norris at that time: "Unborn millions will bend their backs in toil in order to pay for the terrible step we are now about to take. I feel we are about to put the dollar sign on the American flag."

Does Senator Norris believe now that he was right or wrong in the position he took?

"In my service of nearly 30 years in congress," answers the senator, "I undoubtedly have made many mistakes, but my vote against the declaration of war was not one of them."

"We, with the remainder of the world, are still suffering from that unjust and unnecessary struggle. The terrible condition we now are in and the terrible depression in which all classes of our people are suffering would affect us only in a minor degree if we had kept out of that war. It was a war in which no victory was possible. The vanquished suffered no more than the victorious. It was a struggle in which so far as Europe was concerned all parties to it were completely exhausted."

"In that struggle about 100,000 of our noblest and best gave up their lives. Many times that number are crippled and injured so that they are leading lives of suffering and misery."

"We know now that we will not get from under the results of the struggle during our lives or the lives of our children. Unborn generations will yet toil and suffer and sweat to pay for our participation in that catastrophe."

"Mainly because of that war most classes of our people, innocent though they be, are suffering beyond the limits of imagination to understand, and will continue to suffer. It is not only the tears of the widows and orphans for the loss of loved ones, but it is the continuous toll and sacrifice which we are all making to save our very civilization from destruction."

"I always have been and still am an optimist."

"I believe that better days will come, that honesty in government will regain its foothold, that civilization will recover and that men, women and children will one day be relieved from the struggle and will have the necessities of the comforts and even some of the luxuries of life."

"But before that day comes we must continue in our struggle and in our sacrifices with earnestness and hope."

"After every war of any magnitude there has resulted the drifting of property into the hands of a few. While thousands were risking their lives upon the battlefield, other thousands were coining the blood of their fellow men into gold. And this war, being greater than any which ever preceded it, has resulted in a smaller number of people owning more of the wealth of the world."

"The task which faces us now is to relieve our country and our civilization of a possibility of the only way which so far as Europe was concerned all parties to it were completely exhausted."

"The one duty which confronts us now more than any other is by our system of taxation to place a tax upon inheritances which shall be at a rate progressively advancing and sufficiently high to bring about a redistribution of the ownership of property and the possession of wealth."

"I can see no other way into the open and into the field and realm of happiness for our people unless we levy a tax upon large fortunes, giving liberal exemptions—a tax nevertheless heavy enough not only to raise the money to operate the government and pay the expenses of the war by this means but to bring about a more equal distribution of wealth."

"An inheritance tax is the fairest ever devised by man. It is not expensive to collect and with a liberal exemption it brings no hardship from any class of our people."

Chili Con Carne Cabbage Salad
Canned Corn Apple Pudding
Coffee

This recipe for chili con carne serves six. I warn you that a teaspoon of pepper will make it very hot, so unless that is what you want go slow on that condiment. For ordinary consumption a small fraction of that amount would be sufficient.

Today's Recipes

Chili Con Carne.—Two pounds beef, four tablespoons fat, one large onion, minced; 1 clove garlic, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon pepper, three cups boiling water or meat stock, two tablespoons chili powder, one No. 2 can red kidney beans. Cut the meat into small cubes. Cook the onion and garlic in the fat until a light yellow, add the meat and seasonings and cook, stirring constantly for five minutes. Add the water or stock and the chili powder moistened in a little of the stock. Cover and simmer until meat is tender. Add the kidney beans and cook about 15 minutes longer, taking care not to burn.

Poems That Live

GOD'S WORLD

O world, I cannot hold thee close enough!

Thy winds, thy wide gray skies!

Thy mists, that roll and rise!

Thy woods, this autumn day, that ache and sag

And all but cry with color! That gaunt crag

To crush! To lift the lean of that black bluff!

World, world, I cannot get thee close enough!

Long have I known a glory in it all

But never knew I this.

Here such a passion is

As stretcheth me apart—Lord, I do fear

Thou'lt made the world too beautiful this year.

My soul is all but out of me—let fall

No burning leaf; prithe, let no bird call

Treatment For Cold Cited

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Every time it is stated in this column that there is no certain drug, serum or treatment that will certainly prevent colds, a flood of letters is received in protest. Each of these relates a method of prevention. Some of the methods are worse than having the cold, but the latest is at least harmless and pleasant. It prevents colds, we will be very glad to hear it, and it is published because this department does not wish to appear to be in the position of obstructing any information which will be helpful.

"The Manufacturers' Record" asked Dr. William M. Mackenzie, retired physician, to explain how grapefruit juice is used in the cure of colds and influenza.

"Dr. Mackenzie claims a remarkable record for this remedy. His explanation follows: 'Investigation showed that influenza thrived and became virulent in an acid medium, and was inhibited by an alkaline one. If true—a treatment was simple and plain, viz: to render the system of its victim alkaline. How? Many means were available, yet the simplest and most universally prevalent were citrus fruits and baking soda.'

"Fearfully I tried grapefruit juice and soda in my next case of influenza—a virulent one complicated with pneumonia. Results were startling—symptoms mitigated in a few hours, hemorrhage (severe) stopped immediately, recovery was rapid.

"Being called into the United States public health service, I healed

502 cases of the most severe types within 60 days without a single fatality; this in spite of the fact that double pneumonia, violent hemorrhage, cerebral infections, intestinal inflammation, inadequate care, extreme poverty were among the things with which it was necessary to contend. The same treatment tried by other physicians and myself in innumerable cases since that time has given the same happy results.

"Following is the treatment in detail: At the first sign of 'cold' or influenza, all food is stopped. This plenty of cool, pure water is given throughout the course of the disease. Food in an inflamed alimentary canal is worse than useless, will not digest, and taxes the flagging heart in an effort to get rid of it. No one will starve or need food for a few days. The juice of from five to 15 grapefruit is given daily, divided in portions every four hours or oftener. In between the juice potions not with them, sodium bicarbonate is given, a teaspoonful in a glass of water, then a quarter teaspoonful every four hours or oftener until symptoms are practically gone.

"Orange juice and lemon juice may be used instead of grapefruit, but are not so satisfactory. Orange juice is sweet and tends to disturb the victim's digestion, lemon juice is too sour to be used in quantities. Grapefruit juice alone will achieve results, but the soda hastens alkalinity. Citrus fruits taste acid, but citric acid makes the system alkaline. Grapefruit juice and soda will usually cure an ordinary cold in from 36 to 48 hours, relieve bronchitis, often prevent or mitigate pneumonia.

"In influenza, grapefruit juice and water attend to all the elimination necessary in a fasting patient."

Girl Thinks Its "Fun" To Steal

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a girl 16 years old. I have a friend whom I have known since babyhood. I do not know her friends and she does not know mine, since we live quite far apart. However, we are intimate friends, and we see each other often.

"A few days ago we 'wandered' through a store and she cleverly slipped a string of beads into her pocket. I was the only one who saw the action. I was horrified and asked her later about it. She laughed and said, 'Well, I would not call that stealing. It's fun. My friends and I always take some small thing from every store we enter. It's much more exciting than buying things. Don't you think so?'

"I was silent for the simple reason that I didn't know what to say that would not be insulting (she is very easily insulted). Then we went into a bakery where I bought some bread and cake. There were some cookies on the counter. As we left the store she was eating a cookie. I tried to tell her what dangerous habits she was developing, but she only laughed and said, 'That's fun and excitement. That's being different.'

"Now she can well afford to buy pretty things and has everything a heart can desire. Now, dear Virginia Lee, what shall I do? I think she is in bad company. I do not want to tell her parents because I would feel like a 'tattle tale,' and I don't want to tell mine because they might not allow me to go with her."

"A SCHOOL GIRL." The fact that your friend is easily insulted argues that she knows she is doing wrong and is merely persuading herself that it is clever to steal things. She belongs to the class of people who take the silver, napkins and towels from hotels and restaurants for "souvenirs." It's a pernicious habit. Common stealing, of course, that is all it is, but just as your girl friend says, some people think it is a very smart thing to do.

The trouble is, you can't do much about it, my dear. She is undoubtedly under the influence of some people whom she admires very much, and as long as that influence holds she will imitate the questionable things they do and feel very smart and sophisticated. Unless she can be made to see that she is a common thief by taking these things she won't listen to anyone who tries to talk her out of the habit. And I doubt very much if it would do any good to tell her parents even if you became a "tattle tale" to let them know. She has got to see it's wrong herself before she'll stop. She may get caught, in which case she will be effectively cured. If she isn't you will have to trust that the influence of these friends will finally work off.

I tell her quietly just what you think about the matter, even if she gets angry. Make it emphatic. Then drop the matter except that you see to it that you never go shopping with her unless she promises absolutely that she will not take anything while she is with you. It may be a passing phase of this girl's life, which she will drop and of which she will later be ashamed.

FORBORN: It is rather difficult for me to tell you how you may get acquainted with some new young men, not knowing what the circumstances are. Could you go to another church and meet a new group in that way? Or could you take up some studies in a night school or college and get into a new atmosphere?

Screen Stars' Shoes Sensible

By GLADYS GLAD

If you were to drop into Hollywood studio now, you might be disappointed to note your favorite actress traipsing around in moderately-heeled shoes.

You probably have always had a rather contemptuous opinion of those so-called "sensible" heels. And you might feel rather let down to see your glamorous screen favorite sporting them with great unconcern.

It's a habit out there, however. Gladys Glad, a habit indulged in by almost all screen folk, from stars to extras. Because those people realize how important proper shoes are to foot health, and how important foot health is to poise, gracefulness and beauty. They habitually practice good sense in shoes and therefore can indulge upon occasion in frivolous, high-heeled shoes without any lasting damage being done.

The human foot allows itself to be molded easily, as it is pliable. If shoes do not fit correctly, they restrict the free play of the feet, and many serious foot conditions may result. The bones of the arches may be shifted, the foot muscles may become weakened, and the feet may become deformed and painful.

The properly-fashioned shoe should follow the natural lines of the foot, should be roomy over the toes, and should fit snugly around the heel and over the instep. The heels should be of moderate height, especially for general wear, and should come under the natural bend of each foot, and not under the arch.

Be particular when you purchase your shoes. The salesman may be inclined to think you a slight pain-in-the-neck—but after all, he does not have to wear the shoes. Have your feet measured each time that you buy new shoes. And always try on both shoes of a pair. Be sure to get up and walk around in them, too.

Those new shoes may feel comfortable when you are sitting down, but they may feel a great deal different when you're standing or walking. For your feet are a good deal longer when they're carrying your weight than when they're relaxed, you know.

I shall deal with the third factor in foot health—exercise and rest—in my next article.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Cosmetics

Floes: I think that a soft peach shade of powder, soft orange rouge and light lipstick would be best for you. You should weigh about 122 pounds.

Brown Spots

Dot: For brown spots, so-called "liver spots," use a solution of hyposulphite of soda and water, one part of the solution to eight parts of water.

Pediculosis

Troubled: Soak your hair in hot vinegar before retiring at night. Wash the hair the next morning. Repeat for four nights. This should correct the pediculosis condition.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

With nine other teams again bent on dethroning the Lang Chevrolet Co. as city softball champions, the two twilight leagues annually operated under auspices of the Xenia Playground Association will probably begin operations the latter part of this month.

Makeup of the two leagues—six strongest teams in the National and four in the American—will be determined this week by the Softball Commission after all eligibility lists are available.

Schedules will be drawn and the date fixed for the season's first game.

One guess is as good as another, and it would not be surprising if the six teams selected to compose the National League would be the Lang Chevrolets, Anderson's Abattoir, Downtown Country Club, Xenia Hatchery, Coates Barbers and Spring Valley.

This arrangement would leave Central High School, Company L, O. S. and S. O. Home and the Ex-High team for the American League, the personnel of these four clubs being younger players for the most part, except possibly the National Guard entry.

No sooner were they elected to the Softball Commission, than Walker Gibney, Earl Boxwell and "Link" Shephard made arrangements the next day to get the Cox Field diamond in shape for the season's long grind.

Where all the terra firma on the diamond disappears to between playing seasons is a mystery, but at any rate it was necessary to put twenty-four loads of dirt on it. This was sprinkled and will be rolled, a heavy roller to be borrowed for the purpose. The grassy outfield will also be worked to some extent.

Now that Cedarville College has been enrolled as a probationary member of the Northwest Ohio Conference, Coach Marvin Borst is probably thankful that the three-year or "freshman" rule will be optional with members of the athletic group. Freshmen athletes are the salvation of Cedarville football, basketball and baseball teams because of the school's small enrollment.

Cedarville and also Wilmington College, the second new member of the conference, will not be admitted to full membership until next year. Bluffton, Defiance and Findlay are the other three colleges still affiliated with the circuit.

Sporting note: the "Milo Club" is dead.

Bowling

It was a long, hard climb, but the Flex-Welt bowling team, fifth-erto an inconspicuous team in the Krippendorf League, finally attained the pinnacle last week, ousting Arch-O-Pedic from the top position. The new league leaders have first place all to themselves—and with two full games to spare. The Recreation League race has become more lopsided than ever, the Red Wings "striving" to protect a lead of fifteen games. Standings:

RECREATION LEAGUE

Red Wings	59	28	.678

DAYTON TEAM WINS BOWLING TOURNEY

DETROIT, April 11.—The Jefferson Clothiers of Dayton, O., are the new national five-man bowling champions as result of their 3,108 score rolled Saturday night in the American Bowling Congress.

Sunday bowling which concluded the five man entries, failed to dislodge them, although Verlines of Milwaukee placed second with 3,101.

The congress will close Monday afternoon with the finals in the doubles and singles events. In the doubles Sunday T. Corden and A. Hein, of Chicago, moved into sixth place with a 1,298 total. Eddie Krems, Chicago, rolled 700 to take tenth place in the singles.

FIRST BASEBALL GAME WASHED OUT

Lacking cooperation from the weather, the Xenia Merchants were compelled to call off a contemplated practice game Sunday afternoon at Washington Park, scheduled as the informal opener of the season.

The Xenia baseball team was to have made its 1932 debut in a practice contest with the William A. Shroyer semi-pro nine from Dayton, but the game was washed out, owing to rain.

An opponent for next Sunday's matinee has not been booked, Business Manager George Ewing said Monday.

PRISONER QUIZZED SEEKING NEW CLUE; REWARD PUBLISHED

the aviator was able to identify the men to whom he paid the ransom money. It also set at rest reports that a piece of the clothing in which the child disappeared had been shown to the colonel that he might be sure the men he dealt with had his son.

Every effort to learn something of the identity of the unnamed suspect taken by the police failed. It was learned, however, that the man was taken into custody Friday night. He was questioned and turned over to Inspector Harry Walsh of the Jersey City police, who escorted him to Hopewell, where he remains under questioning by Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf of the New Jersey state police.

"His alibi," Col. Schwartzkopf stated in a bulletin, "is being investigated."

An informant definitely connected him with the crime and this is one of the lines of the investigation referred to in the earlier bulletins which we could not disclose at the time. This investigation caused a very considerable amount of work in Wertsville, Somerville, Long Branch, Atlantic Highlands, Philadelphia, Plattsburgh, Staten Island, New York City, Montreal, Newark, Jersey City, and a number of farms in rural New Jersey.

"The man finally was apprehended at the home of his mother in New York City, and was interviewed. His story and alibi are now being checked and in a day or two further details can be given as to the findings."

It was recalled that Abraham Wagner, New York gangster and aide of Harry Fleisher, the Detroit Purple Gang member, lived with his mother in New York. As Wagner and Fleisher have been sought for questioning, it was considered possible by observers that the "noted character" might be Wagner.

There was intense activity at the Lindbergh home on Soudan Mountain during the night. More than a dozen automobiles were parked in the courtyard. The house was brilliantly lighted.

The latest of several unverified reports and theories was that the kidnappers had telephoned Lindbergh that they wanted a new deal, in which they would return the currency if the colonel would pay them in gold coin. This would indicate the kidnappers feared that the U. S. treasury's broadcast of ransom currency serial numbers had endangered their safety.

Meanwhile the "Jafse" negotiator continued efforts to establish contact with the men he had been dealing with as the kidnappers. A New York newspaper today carried the same message that has been printed for several days. It read:

"What is wrong? Have you crossed me? Please, better directions. Jafse."

The three Norfolk men negotiating for the return of the baby expressed confidence in their lead. Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock indicated last night he expected big developments within the next few days.

The minister said that John Hughes Curtis had left Norfolk to confer with Col. Lindbergh. Curtis departed in a naval plane yesterday. Rear Admiral Guy H. Burgess, third negotiator, still was absent from the city. The minister would not indicate when he or Curtis might return.

RAIN THREATENING BASEBALL OPENERS IN MAJOR LEAGUES

Campaign To Start Monday and Tuesday If Rain Stops

NEW YORK, April 11.—Major league players may be forced to sit around disconsolate today and tomorrow unless the weather man shuts off the sprinklers so the baseball season can get under way as scheduled.

President Hoover was scheduled to toss out the first ball for the Senators and Boston Red Sox at Washington today, but the horrid hide nowhere may make quite a splash when and if it lands.

Tomorrow the season opens in eight of the eleven major league cities.

Yesterday five out of eight scheduled games were called off.

While the rain made a marsh out of Yankee stadium's diamond Saturday and Sunday, the Yanks and Robins lost an opportunity to wipe out spring training deficits, a matter of some $30,000 each, by cancellation of their two games.

So, all the world is waiting for the sunshine—even the vendors of hot dogs, peanuts and pop, and the girls whose foolish questions annoy their male escorts at opening games.

The 1932 major league season was scheduled to be inaugurated as follows:

Today: Boston at Washington—(American).

Tomorrow: National League Philadelphia at New York. Boston at Brooklyn. Chicago at Cincinnati. Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

American League New York at Philadelphia. Washington at Boston. St. Louis at Chicago. Cleveland at Detroit.

Bumper Bachelor Crop in Hollywood

Film Capital Ideal Hunting Ground for Girls Who Feel Urge to Exercise Leap Year Privileges. Longest List of Eligibles in History.

For the girl who desires to exercise the traditional right of selecting her husband before this leap year runs out, there is no more promising hunting ground in the world than Hollywood. Never has there been such a bumper crop of eligible bachelors as the present aggregation of young movie stars. There is Joel McCrea, whose good looks and film popularity would make him a welcome son-in-law to any mama in the country. That Joel is not immune to the barbs of Cupid is evident by the pitter-patter into which his heart was thrown by the beauty of Constance Bennett before she married the Marquis de la Falaise. Then there is James Dunn, who, though a newcomer to the screen, made a rapid climb to stardom after his initial success in "Bad Girl." Jimmie is at that impressionable age when a smart girl might succeed in roping him, although he is more concerned with his career than with women, so far. For the girl who likes the big outdoor man, Gary Cooper is waiting to be picked off the bachelor bandwagon. Gary had a bit of heart trouble over Lupe Velez, according to rumor, but that's just a memory. For the girl inclined towards music there is Ramon Navarro, who sings like an opera star and is as handsome as a Greek God. Though Buddy Rogers has temporarily deserted Hollywood for the stage, he's still on the eligible list. Buddy likes his girl old-fashioned—no flash-toters need apply. William Haines is still another ornament on the bachelor Christmas tree. Bill is not as wild in real life as he is in real life. He prefers the friendship of older women, but that doesn't mean that he would not rather have the love of a younger one. So go right ahead, girls, bait your hooks.

HOLLYWOOD, April 11.—No where in the world is there a better hunting ground for the girl who feels the urge to exercise her leap year privilege than the film kingdom of Hollywood.

Never before has there been such a crop of eligibles in the land where the stars shine in the day as well as at night. What's more, they are young men that any mama in the land would be proud to welcome as a son-in-law. And to make the prospect more pleasing it might be added that it would be less difficult than one imagines to hook one of these unattached gentlemen, because they seem to be of a most susceptible order. First, because most of them are younger than usual, and secondly because of the number of newcomers amongst them, who have not yet had time to acquire the shell of cynicism.

Like to look 'em over, girls? Here goes!

Well, there is Joel McCrea, Hollywood's idea of a prize matrimonial catch, affectionately called "Prince of Juveniles." Joel's youth, good looks and film popularity have made him one of the most arresting figures on the bachelor bandwagon. It is encouraging to know that he is not immune to the barbs of Cupid, as it may be recalled that Constance Bennett had Joel's heart knocking like a Tom-mys-gun for several months before she married the Marquis de la Falaise. Joel still thinks that Connie is one of the loveliest girls in the world, so there's a chance for some little girl who thinks she possesses the "Bennett look" to catch the "Prince of Juveniles" on the rebound.

If Joel does not come up to your specifications you have mapped out for your ideal, here's another. He is James Dunn, a newcomer to moviedom who rapidly attained stardom after his initial success in "Bad Girl." Jimmie is handsome enough to please the most fastidious, is 26 years old and, they say, still unsophisticated. At present he appears more concerned with his screen career than with women, but he's at the impressionable age where a smart girl might turn the trick.

Then for the girl who likes the big hero of the outdoors there is Gary Cooper, just waiting to be snapped up. Gary has been on the bachelor list for several years. Rumor hath it that the glamorous Lupe Velez made his heart turn somersaults, but that's just a memory now and he's in circulation for the one who can slip a loop on him.

Ramon Navarro is another eligible who would be the perfect answer to a maiden's prayer. Ramon sings like an opera star and the lucky girl who finally wins him won't have to listen to any weird noises when he takes his matrimonial cold shower. Ramon will say it with arioso.

For the girl with old-fashioned ideals, Buddy Rogers is made to order. Buddy doesn't believe in the ultra-modern, flask-toting girl. Though he is not in Hollywood at the moment, being engaged with Flo Ziegfeld's latest stage production, Buddy is included in the Hollywood list as it was there that he won the admiration of female Young America.

William Haines is still another ornament on the bachelor Christmas tree, waiting for some good little girl to come and pick him off. Bill prefers the friendship of older women, but that does not mean that he wouldn't rather have the love of a younger one. So go right ahead, girls, bait your hooks.

Many other desirable breadwinners are on the bachelor list and as the assortment is made up of so many different types a girl should be able to pick the man she wants. All that's really necessary is the spark of courage to take the leap and, of course, knowledge of the correct method of approach. The boys may be shy, girls, so walk warily until you are sure of getting your man at the first shot.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Chick Hafey, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder and the National League's leading hitter last season, was traded today to the Cincinnati Reds.

Hafey, who has been a stubborn holdout goes to the Reds in exchange for Benny Frey, pitcher, and an unannounced amount of cash.

Hafey, now at Berkeley, California, had been holding out for $17,000 salary this year, the Cards refusing to increase their offer of $13,000.

He said last week he would retire from the game rather than accept the offer. Last year he received $12,500 but was docked $2,000 of that amount for reporting late.

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—Before making the deal with the St. Louis club today for Hafey, Sidney Weil, president of the Reds, talked to Hafey, who is in Berkeley, Calif., by telephone and came to terms with the outfielder in regard to his 1932 salary.

Hafey assured Weil he has been working out, is close to playing condition, and will start driving east Monday or Tuesday. He expects to report here no later than next Monday.

Dan Howley, manager of the Reds, plans to use Hafey in left field as soon as Chick is ready to play. Babe Herman in right and Taylor Douthett or Estel Crabtree in center. He believes he will have the hardest hitting outfield in the National League this year.

Negotiations for Hafey started by telephone at 8:30 last night and Weil was up practically all night concluding the deal by telephone.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Chick Hafey, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder and the National League's leading hitter last season, was traded today to the Cincinnati Reds.

Hafey, who has been a stubborn holdout goes to the Reds in exchange for Benny Frey, pitcher, and an unannounced amount of cash.

Hafey, now at Berkeley, California, had been holding out for $17,000 salary this year, the Cards refusing to increase their offer of $13,000.

He said last week he would retire from the game rather than accept the offer. Last year he received $12,500 but was docked $2,000 of that amount for reporting late.

CINCINNATI, O., April 11.—Before making the deal with the St. Louis club today for Hafey, Sidney Weil, president of the Reds, talked to Hafey, who is in Berkeley, Calif., by telephone and came to terms with the outfielder in regard to his 1932 salary.

Hafey assured Weil he has been working out, is close to playing condition, and will start driving east Monday or Tuesday. He expects to report here no later than next Monday.

Dan Howley, manager of the Reds, plans to use Hafey in left field as soon as Chick is ready to play. Babe Herman in right and Taylor Douthett or Estel Crabtree in center. He believes he will have the hardest hitting outfield in the National League this year.

Negotiations for Hafey started by telephone at 8:30 last night and Weil was up practically all night concluding the deal by telephone.

Townsley Chick Chat

Some poultry keepers are going to make more money in 1932 than in a good many years, while others will do only moderately well. The reason is that some will start with good chicks, and others will not.

If you desire to get your share of profits during the next season, carefully consider your source of baby chicks. First of all you want chicks that will live. Dead chicks pay no profits. Then you want chicks that will grow quickly and develop into profitable market birds or satisfactory egg producers. A chick is no better than its parent stock.

Decide today that you are going to make the most of this season's opportunities by buying Townsley Thoroughbred Accredited chicks—the chicks that have made good for your neighbors.

one continuous motion without any interruption. This applies to every swing from the longest drive down to the shortest putt. The backward and forward motions simply represent the wind-up and unwinding of the proper set of muscles.

The proper wind-up starts, as I have told you, after the body weight has been shifted to the right leg. Then the backward turning of the body, arms, hands and the club takes place in the following order:

1—The full turn of the hips is made.

2—This is followed by a still greater turn of the shoulders. During the entire action the club is kept pointed at a spot back of the ball so that the head remains independent of the turning motion of the body.

3—The full backward motion of the arms, particularly the bending of the wrists, is reserved for the final stages of the wind-up.

These movements performed in this order follow and blend into one another naturally. This wind-up affords the feeling of tremendous power generated and ready to be expressed in the unleashing of these muscles in the downswing. I'll tell you more about this and the proper downswing in my next article.

CHAPTER 28

"LAURA, BABY You've got to have a doctor. You're sick," Eve tried to humor her.

"No... no..."

"She'll need more than a doctor if you don't hurry," said Mrs. Morris. An old flannel bath robe pulled grotesquely about her.

"I won't have a doctor!" moaned Laura, writhing from pain. Her face pasty and drawn. Her eyes stretched with terror. "I won't!"

Mrs. Morris pulled Lillian over to the side. "She'll die if you don't get a doctor—"

"I'd rather die than have one!" screamed the tortured Laura.

Now she was doubled up with pain. The little bed squeaked with her incessant motion.

"I haven't any money—no money to pay for a doctor," Laura said through her clenched teeth. "No money—"

"We'll get some money, somehow—"

Eve said, looking at Mrs. Morris.

"We'll pay him, Laura—"

"I'd rather die than have bills to pay—I have no money!"

"We'll get some money, Laura," Lillian pleaded.

"No money... no job... how can I pay... how can any of us pay?" Laura gasped the words.

Mrs. Morris pushed past Lillian and Eve, through the doorway.

It seemed but a few moments before she returned and with her came a sleepy-eyed little man, carrying a doctor's kit in one hand while he pulled his coat together in the front, attempting to hide his pajamas.

"There she is," said Mrs. Morris, with an air of authority.

The man sat on the side of the bed; his quick, muscular hands moved beneath Laura's hands.

"There? That's where it hurts?"

"They knew by the way Laura jerked it was."

He looked up at Mrs. Morris and nodded. Lillian and Eve knew that Mrs. Morris had diagnosed the case correctly. Appendicitis!

"She won't have to go to the hospital, will she, doctor?"

Strange Films Planned—One From Greenland

By mid-summer, Carl Laemmle Jr., will have one film troupe working in Greenland and another in the Malayan Archipelago.

The young Universal executive has just engaged Dr. Arnold Fanck to head an expedition into northern Greenland to photograph a story called "Iceberg". Simultaneously, he will dispatch another company to the South Seas to film "The Black Pearl".

Dr. Fanck is perhaps the leading European director of out-of-door melodramas. He was responsible for "The White Hell of Pitz-Palu," "Storm Over Mont Blanc" and several other memorable photo-plays. None surpass him in dramatizing the elements against backgrounds of natural splendor.

In his coming expedition, however, he'll be competing against one of Hollywood's outstanding directors of adventure films. For Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer also is sending

The Xenia Quoit Club began operations last week. M. J. Bebb and a few more of the quoit toasters are happy.

The city school board is in a pickle. The heating system in the central building is worn out and the board has no funds to install a new plant, which would cost $20,000.

Charles J. Bone and Louis Clark will be in the cast when a "Mock Trial and Minstrel" is presented at the next Y. M. C. A. entertainment at the Opera House April 25 and 26.

On the day the deal was made, RKO also tried to borrow her for the lead opposite Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "Hold 'Em, Jail".

Joan is under contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Another blonde actress, Myrna Loy, also has a new assignment.

She's to play the siren in the Chevrolet picture, "Love Me Tonight."

The man who has played so many practical jokes on the stars, will be on the receiving end at last. Vincent Barnett, filmdom's professional insulter, has been engaged by Paramount to play a foil for one of the Marx Brothers in "Horse Feathers".

Phillips Holmes is in Good Samaritan Hospital for an operation on the twisted ligament in his knee. If he recovers in time, he may play in Constance Bennett's new

Ice Cubes-A New Service

What Are Ice Cubes

Users of ice have long wanted a means of obtaining ice cubes without waste. Here is the solution. We have installed machinery that takes pure, crystal clear cakes of ice and cuts them into cubes—standard sized for iced tea, coffee or other chilled drinks.

They are packed in waterproof containers and will last 48 to 72 hours.

They are obtainable in bulk or in cartons of 24 or 48 cubes.

How You Save!

- Ice cubes last longer than other kinds, because they are not full of air bubbles.
- Ice cubes chill drinks better because they come from solid cakes and are better refrigeration.
- You save by not having to open your ice box—with danger of spoiling foods.
- You save because there is no waste from chipping.
- You don't have to mess your kitchen by running water to separate them from metal.
- You save because they are pure.
